Register of ASX Settlement Operating Rule Waivers

Present Application

The Waiver is considered necessary to prevent potential mischief, such as the potential for a holder to gain inappropriate access to a distribution made by a Fund as a result of a disparity (due to differences in time zones, public holidays and regulatory obligations between Australia and the US) between a Fund's record date in Australia and the record date in that Fund's overseas home jurisdiction, the US. Such disparity may create an opportunity for a holder who is not entitled to receive a distribution to inappropriately gain access to that distribution.

The only possible disadvantage would be to an investor who legitimately purchases their holding on one market and wishes to sell their holding on the other, without any attempt at gaining access to the dividend. However, BlackRock believes that suitable notification of the intention to investors will adequately minimise this risk and, rather, that failing to grant this waiver has the greater potential for harm and/or mischief.
